Be Connected – The Upstream Approach

Be Connected uses an upstream approach to suicide prevention in the military/veteran community. By meeting the veteran where they are with the resources that they need, we can help before the moment of crisis, preventing suicide.

Learning objectives:

1. Attendees will gain an understanding of what Be Connected is.
2. Attendees will gain the understanding of how Be Connected can be used as well as the confidence to use it.
3. Attendees will gain an understanding of the Be Connected Partnership and the statewide ecosystem.

Courtney Smythe joined the US Navy in 2004, serving almost 13 years, before transitioning out in 2017, moving home to Arizona, and attending ASU for her BS in Parks and Recreation Management. After graduating in August 2019, she joined the Be Connected team where she is able to use her experiences from her time in the service and her knowledge gained while pursuing her undergrad, to build relationships with community members at the local, state and federal level, encouraging efforts and facilitating resource connections for the military/veteran community.
